The Hennick Centre for Business and Law had another active and successful year in 2010-11. The Centre has continued to lay foundations through improved relationships with stakeholders within the legal, business, regulatory and academic communities. The Centre again offered a full slate of programming designed to engage students, faculty and professionals in informed debate at the intersection of business, law and public policy. In short, this was a year in which the Centre built on past successes and made strides toward achieving the goals laid out in our five-year strategic plan.
During the past year, the Hennick Centre initiated or co-sponsored a wide range of events for audiences of practitioners, scholars and policymakers. The Centre’s intention in crafting this slate of programming was to continue to build visibility and credibility among our stakeholders and target audiences. We are grateful to our sponsors, funders and collaborators, who are listed throughout the summary of the most notable events below:

International Financial Reporting Standards: What Lawyers Need to Know
June 11, 2010

The implementation of IFRS has a significant impact on an entity’s financial processes, reporting requirements and business activities including corporate and securities laws and contractual obligations. A joint initiative of the Hennick Centre and Osgoode Professional Development, this program brought together leading industry experts and practitioners who shared thoughtful and sophisticated analysis of the key issues companies face in transitioning to IFRS, as well as what lawyers need to know to advise their clients properly.

Corporate Social Reporting Initiative: Press Conference
July 15, 2010

JD/MBA Students’ Association Annual Conference
March 25, 2011
The Hennick Centre has been a strong supporter of this student-run conference since the Centre’s official launch at the 2009 conference. The theme of this year’s event was “Leadership and Innovation in the Global Economy.” The keynote speaker was Lynton “Red” Wilson, and panel discussions addressed stakeholder relations, financial regulation, entrepreneurship in a global context and international foreign investment.

Book Launch: “Influencing Powerful People,” by Dirk Schlimm
April 5, 2011
The Hennick Centre, Stikeman Elliott LLP, Jenoir Management Consultants, McGraw-Hill and Jantzi Sustainalytics co-sponsored a book launch for Dirk Schlimm’s new publication. Dirk is an internationally recognized expert on power & politics in organizations. The book provides advice on how to work with leaders, especially those who are demanding and difficult.
A key commitment of the Hennick Centre for Business and Law is providing opportunities for education and professional development to students at Osgoode and Schulich and the schools’ graduates. In addition to its support of the annual JD/MBA Students’ Association Conference and the “Lunch With” Series, the Centre also supports a number of activities and initiatives for JD/MBA students as part of its commitment to promoting and growing the joint program, and interdisciplinary scholarship more generally.

Innovative Course Offerings
This year, Ed Waitzer, Director of the Hennick Centre, ran a seminar available to both JD and MBA students entitled “The Art of the Deal,” a course developed by the Centre to help students gain a more practical understanding of business transactions using actual deal documents. The popular Investor Protection Seminar for law students and financial journalists, led by Professor Waitzer, Jacquie McNish of the Globe and Mail, and Ilana Singer of FAIR Canada is now into its fourth year.

Hennick Fellows
The Hennick Centre has created formal positions for JD/MBA students to gain practical experience and benefit from unique networking opportunities made possible by the Centre’s initiatives. Vincent Doré, a third-year JD/MBA student and executive member of the JD/MBA Students’ Association, currently holds the position and has been actively involved in creating promotional materials for this year’s events, attending and reporting on the Centre’s most significant initiatives, and strengthening the ties between the Centre and the Students’ Association. Other students have been hired for specific research tasks.

Hennick Centre Open House
September 21, 2010
The Hennick Centre held an open house for faculty, staff and students on September 21st at the Schulich School of Business. Attended by more than 50 guests, the event is designed to provide an opportunity for JD and MBA students to learn more about the joint JD/MBA program and the Hennick Centre.
The Hennick Centre has played an integral role in the launch of the first formal Osgoode-Schulich JD/MBA Alumni Association. The establishment of this alumni network is a key step to promoting the JD/MBA program and will engage more joint degree graduates in the Hennick Centre’s activities. In addition to the Association’s Alumni dinner on October 6th, 2010, the Centre sponsored and hosted an Alumni Reception on May 18, 2010.

Professor Waitzer received a significant research grant from the International Centre for Pension Management to develop fiduciary standards for pension fund trustees. He is also working on a longer term project to re-examine certain assumptions underlying corporate governance frameworks.

Professor Puri received the Walter L. Gordon Research Fellowship for a book she is writing on the asset-backed commercial paper financial crisis. She also conducted policy-oriented research and wrote on issues relating to auditor liability and stakeholder interests in corporate governance.

In 2010, James Darroch was appointed the Board of the Toronto Financial Services Alliance (TFSA) a joint public/private sector organization with the mandate of promoting Toronto as a global financial center. He has also been an active participant in helping to establish the Global Risk Institute (GRI).
OTHER INITIATIVES

Certificate Program
The Hennick Centre, along with Osgoode Professional Development and the Schulich Executive Education Centre, has developed the Certificate in Business for Lawyers, a 13-week course with nine modules to help practicing lawyers learn valuable business skills. Hennick Centre staff assisted OPD and SEEC with marketing and outreach and is participating in program instruction.

Medals
After awarding Kathleen Taylor with the Hennick Centre Career Achievement Medal, Steven Raphael, JD/MBA class of ’10, was presented with the Hennick Medal for Academic Excellence at the JD/MBA Students’ Association Conference.

COMMUNICATIONS

Media
The Hennick Centre and its events were the subject of extensive media coverage over the course of the year. Many of the Centre’s news stories and mentions were in national Canadian publications like the Globe and Mail and the National Post, including several op/ed pieces by Ed Waitzer and Poonam Puri. The Centre was also covered by internal York University communications outlets. For the second year, the National Post generously sponsored the Hennick Centre and JD/MBA Students’ Association with a series of two free banner advertisements in the Financial Post in March, 2011. The first ad focused on the Hennick Centre in general, the second on the JD/MBA student conference.

The Centre also created, with the aid of a graphic designer, a new logo for the Intersections newsletter to help build the Hennick Centre brand, and to improve the quality and professionalism of its outputs.

Website
The Hennick Centre website has been kept up-to-date with photos and news from recent events, links to media hits, and information on the Centre, its people and its initiatives. A calendar has been added to the Upcoming Events page to simplify navigation of the Centre’s many events.

The Hennick Centre for Business and Law looks forward to working with you to make next year a success. Please visit www.hennickcentre.ca for more information.
